The knives in the Eva Solo Nordic kitchen series are manufactured according to ancient Japanese traditions that employ the same techniques used more than 2,000 years ago, to produce Samurai swords.

Here, skilled metalworkers have laid 66 layers of Damascus steel around the core, which constitutes the 67th layer. The result is a sharper, harder and more balanced knife.

This allows you to work with greater precision and control, whether you are trimming a steak, chopping vegetables or cutting bread.

The White Line series is made of aluminium for optimum heat distribution across the base and up the sides. The pots, saucepan and pans all have a ceramic coating on the outside and an aluminium rim all the way around the top to protect the cookware.

This means that the cookware withstands very high temperatures and is extremely robust and hard-wearing. The inside of the pots and saucepan also has a hard ceramic coating, while the frying pans and sauté pan have a non-stick coating.

BAKING

The national confectionery team says:

I have tried the raising basket with some different types of bread dough. Both dough rising in the fridge and general rising at room temperature. Wet dough with 95% water in and stiff dough with 70% water. Works well with both types of bread. Have been very happy with the size of the basket as it has made it possible to make bigger bread and smaller bread in the same basket. With that size, it is also easier to have the bread covered, without worrying about the dough rising up to touch the bag or cloth I have the dough covered with.
